

N men (Lat num praenomen et Anglicum nomen) ANSWER KEYMACRONS: -1 for 1st error, -1/5 for others

I. Scribe sententiam Latinam et transfer in Anglicam.

x%

1 point/word

LATINA: Sententiam Latinam scribere nunc potes!

ANGLICA: Now you are able to (you can) write a Latin sentence!

[remember to include MACRONS but NOT ACCENTS, e.g., laudabimus but not sémper]

II. Transfer fideliter bulam in Anglicam.

xliix%

½ per word

Scribe rōs librū rum nostrū rum fībulū sīdū hominibus mālūs scrībunt. Tantalus, rōx Graecus, fīliū habebat; nō men fīliū erat “Pelops,” et fīliū Pelopis erant Atreus et Thyestes. Tantalus Pelopem nec retemptabat (temptare, “to try”) et, propter vitium, poenitēs perpetuūs dabat. Fīliū Pelopis mālūs mīrūs multaque vitiā habebant. Thyestes uxoris rem Atreum corrumptit; rā Atreum vincit, et post parvam morā puerūs frētrīs necat, corpora secat, et frētrīcē nam tum dare audet. L. vius (“Livy”) dī Tarquiniū (5) Superbus, rex Rōmānum, et dī Sextus Tarquiniū, fīliū rōgis, scrībūt. Sextus L. crētiam, fī minā magna virtutis, rapuit, et fīmina bona vitium tolerare non poterat. Rōmānūs antīquī regē Tarquinium et fīliū semper culpabant, et Graeci Tantulum et Atreum Thyestemque saepe culpabant. (9)

The authors/writers of our books compose/write stories about wicked men. Tantalus, a Greek king, had a son; the son's name was “Pelops,” and the sons of Pelops[NOT “sons of Pelops”]: you MUST translate NAMES into NOMINATIVE form] were Atreus and Thyestes. Tantalus tried to slay Pelops[NOT “slay Pelopem”; see above] and, because of his[“the” ok, but better to ROUTINELY SUPPLY POSSESSIVES] crime, he was paying an eternal/perpetual penalty. The sons of Pelops had bad character/morals and many vices[multA modifies vitiA, not morES]. Thyestes seduces the wife of Atreus; anger overcomes Atreus, and after a little delay[MORA=delay; MORS=death, MOS=habit] he slays his brother's sons, cuts up/butchers the(ir) bodies, and then dares to serve/give [them as] dinner to his brother. Livy wrote about Tarquinius[NOT “TarquiniO”: see reminder about NAMES above] Superbus, king of the Romans, and about Sextus Tarquinius, the king's son. Sextus raped Lucretia, a woman of great virtue/courage, and the good woman was not able to/could not endure/tolerate the crime. The ancient Romans always used to blame/condemn/were always condemning king Tarquinius and his son, and the Greeks often censured/blamed Tantalus and Atreus and Thyestes.

III. Scribe casum et sum hōrum nō minūm et adiectivūrum in fībulū.

x%

I + I @ CASUS:

hominibus (littera i) abl. USUS:

obj. of prep.

rōx (i) nom. appositive/apposition (“subject” = - ½)

mīrūs (iii) acc. dir. obj.

frētrī (v) dat. indir. obj.

rōgis (vi) gen. possession/possessive (no points deducted, but note that these words are spelled with 4 s's)

IV. Find in the passage two “complementary infinitives.”

ii%

I @

nec re(2) dare(5) tolerare(7) [ANY 2 of these 3]

V. Declension in Latin.

xi%

amor v rus,
insingul r

½ per word

N      amor      v rus

G      am ris      v r

D      am r      v r

Ac      am rem      v rum

Ab      am re      v r

V      ( ) amor      v re
[the “ ” is not required, though common]

carmen (gen. carminis) Graecum,
inpl r l ↗ PLURAL not SINGULAR

carmina      Graeca
[BASE is carmin-]
carminum      Graec rum

carminibus      Graec s

carmina      Graeca

carminibus      Graec s

( ) carmina      Graeca

VI. Coniug possum, posse in tempore praesent et sum, esse in tempore futur .

vi%

½ per word

possum in praesent :

Sg.                          Pl.
possum                          possumus

potes                          potestis

potest                          possunt

sum in futur :

Sg.                          Pl.
er                                  erimus

eris                                  eritis erit                                  erunt

VII. Coniug trah , trahere in temporibus praesent et futur et scr be duo imperativa.

½ per word

TEMPUS PRAES NS:

Sg.                          Pl.
trah                          trahimus

[REMEMBER: o-i-i-i-i-u]

trahis                          trahitis

[the i's are NOT long]

trahit                          trahunt

TEMPUS FUT RUM:

Sg.                          Pl.
traham                          trah mus

trah s                                  trah tis

[the e's are long, except before -t/nt]

trahet                          trahent

Imperativum singulare: trahē Imperativum plurale: trahite [NOT trahete]

VIII. Fill in each blank with an English word that demonstrates your knowledge of the Latin etymology (e.g., “A ‘laudatory’ speech is full of praise”).

v%

I + I i. A “belligerent” person favors waging/carrying on/conducting war.

I ii. The name of each “conscript” was literally written onto a list.

I iii. “Insidious” persons often engage in plot(s)/treachery/ambush(es).

I iv. An “uxorious” man is especially submissive to his wife.

PRAEMIUM ADDITUM +v% = +1 @

Quis (“who”) erat frater Bitnis? Cleobis [only +½ if misspelled]

Quid Cydipp videlicet derbat? statue [½] of Juno [½] [must include BOTH for +1]

Matri lis et Catullus erant Romanus (a) regis (b) historicus (c) poetae (d) tyrannus c

Quid erat in equo Tristis? (respond in Latin) Graecus / vir / hominis / piae (any 1; ½ if misspelled)

Quid Matri lis Sabidi dicens poterat? (in Latin or Anglicanum) nō nō amō t / I don't love[like] you